In the event of an incident; our emergency response and incident management strategies effectively manages the initial impact and the potential escalation of the risks. Our solutions and practices are validated and delivered to an international standard.

Project Consultancy - To meet the challenges within the maritime industry physical assets have sophisticated integrated technical systems that are increasingly intricate and automated. Our team has the knowledge to review the projects design and the technical specifications package and create projected security solutions that are tailored to the requirements of the client and incorporated into the build programme

Security Plans & Audits - The physical assets within the maritime industry can be multifaceted with many agencies working from a standardised framework within the security management system. Our methodology is proven with all vessel and port facility security plans and emergency incident management practices being approved and verified by the Designated Authorities and Flag States.

Training - Prevention of a safety / security incident is paramount and it is the responsibility of the companies that a robust training regime is in place for its personnel. Our system approach to training demonstrates the highest quality instruction utilising a variety of training techniques. The training courses are designed for the various sectors of the industry and the different levels of management within the company.

Vessel Escorts - The Maritime Industry is the world's major transportation system providing petroleum products and other merchandise globally. Hadcon vessel escort service has been developed and tailored for vessels transiting through high risk sea areas and providing support to companies that have projects operating in areas of high risk. We provide authorised close protection officers that are armed or unarmed. The specialised weapon systems and security equipment have the appropriate licences.

Random Drug & Alcohol Screening - As part of the quality management control system and duty of care policies; companies are incorporating random drug and alcohol screening programmes ensuring personnel have no health or personal issues. Our screening programme includes a male / female team that adheres to the human rights of personnel and medical ethics preventing cross contamination prior to, during and post the screening procedure. The samples taken are tested against all the major groups of recreational drugs and relevant samples are sent to an independent laboratory.

Procurement - Today's physical assets in the maritime industry are encompassing fully integrated technical solutions that are becoming increasingly automated. We are able to evaluate the design and the technical specifications of the project and present bespoke solutions that meet the present and future risks. We will manage the warranties and tailor a comprehensive maintenance, spares and training package that meets the demands of the client.
